

The Women's Health and Action Research Center (WHARC), Proudly announces the 4th Professor Olikoye Ransome-Kuti Research Competition for Sexual and Reproductive Health. The Ransome-Kuti Policy and Leadership Development (RPLD) Program of the Women's Health and Action Research Center (WHARC), is aimed at promoting the legacies of Nigeria's foremost Health Minister, Professor Olikoye Ransome-Kuti, in perpetuity.

The Research competition is an integral part of the RPLD Program. This year, the program will fund 1-2 grants of up to 2,300 USD each, to promote research and documentation in the areas of child survival, primary health care, sexual and reproductive health.

We are interested in professionals working in the areas of public health to include; Medical Practitioners, Lawyers, Sociologists, Educationists, Economists, and Postgraduate students. Applicants from disadvantaged backgrounds are encouraged to apply. The call is open to individuals across Sub-Saharan Africa.

For further enquiries and to receive an application form, please send a mail to ransomekuti@gmail.com. Application forms are also available at the Women's Health and Action Research Center, Km 11, Lagos-Benin Expressway, Igue-Iheyia, Benin City, Edo State, Nigeria. Application deadline is September 30, 2009.